

Elon Law Achieves American Bar Association Approval

June 10, 2008

The Elon University School of Law has been granted provisional accreditation by the American Bar Association, substantially meeting ABA standards for curriculum, faculty, facilities, funding, library and admissions. The ABA approval, achieved at the earliest possible date under accreditation guidelines, means that Elon Law graduates may take bar exams in any U.S. jurisdiction and may practice professionally with full rights after passing the bar.

This milestone achievement is an important step toward realizing our vision of a nationally distinctive school of law at Elon University,” said Leo M. Lambert, Elon University president.

“We look forward to continuing our journey toward excellence, creating a law school that emphasizes preparation for leadership in society and Elon’s hallmark of engaged learning.”
